It's confirmed: Guingona is RP envoy to China

By TJ Burgonio

IT'S OFFICIAL: former Vice President Teofisto Guingona is now the country's ambassador to China.

The Commission on Appointments yesterday confirmed the appointment of the 76-year-old Guingona despite a last-ditch attempt by former Sen. Francisco Tatad to block it.

At its plenary session, the commission, chaired by Senate President Franklin Drilon, unanimously approved a recommendation by the committee on foreign affairs endorsing Guingona's appointment.

Earlier, Tatad appeared at a caucus of the commission members and challenged Guingona's appointment, citing the Foreign Service Act which specifies the compulsory retirement of foreign service employees and officers at age 65.

"The nominee is long past sixty-five. Unless he could be named ambassador without becoming an employee of the DFA, there is simply no way of appointing him legally to that position," he said in his letter to Drilon.

Confirmation delayed

Members of the influential body entertained debate on the matter, but eventually ruled that Tatad's opposition had been preempted by the earlier endorsement of Guingona's appointment by the committee on foreign affairs.

Undaunted, Tatad said he would consult his lawyer on the possibility of bringing the case to the courts.

Meanwhile, Angelo Reyes' confirmation as Interior Secretary was further delayed after the committee on local government decided to hear the testimonies of other "opponents" next week.

At the hearing, Reyes came under intense grilling for his decision to waive the security clearance of Gen. Victor Corpus, whom he had appointed to head the Intelligence Service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines in 2001.

At the same hearing, Reyes came face to face with a man, identified as Jonathan Tiongco, who he believed had a part in escorting "bogus witnesses" to the hearings to derail his confirmation. Tiongco denied this.

At the resumption of his testimony, retired Col. Cristobal Irlanda, an oppositor (not a CA member as earlier reported), questioned Reyes' fitness to head a government agency on the grounds that he appointed Corpus as Isafp chief without a security clearance, among others.

At the time of Corpus' appointment, Reyes was Armed Forces chief.

Sen. Rodolfo Biazon, chair of the committee on local government, reminded Reyes that former officials who had served as AFP chiefs before him had abided by rules like requiring security clearances even of personnel applying for clerical posts.

Reyes, however, justified this, saying "There was this transition period. Gen. (Jose) Calimlim had to relinquish his post. We had to appoint somebody immediately. There was a need for somebody to be appointed immediately."

When asked by Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile if he was disciplined by the President for this, Reyes said: "No. They probably thought it was a good decision."

He vowed not to be remiss again if he were confirmed by the commission, saying "I will profit from this session. I will go through the process [next time]."

Later, members of the commission summoned Tiongco for questioning from among the crowd of spectators after establishing that he was the person who escorted "opponents" Eduardo Arabit yesterday and Rosalie Ramoso last Tuesday.

Just an observer

"He's trying to persuade people to issue statements that will derail my confirmation," Reyes said of Tiongco, noting that even anti-crime advocate Teresita Ang-See was among those approached by Tiongco.

But Tiongco flatly denied this, saying "I'm just an observer. I'm always here at the Senate."

Arabit alleged that he was nabbed, tortured and jailed by agents of Reyes' National Anti-Kidnapping Task Force in March this year, while Ramoso insisted on Tuesday that Reyes had a hand in the killing of his brother in December 2003.

Both, however, failed to convince the commission members when they refused to say who helped them prepare their affidavits.

Reyes said he had ordered the national police to "get into the bottom" of the conspiracy to derail his confirmation through bogus witnesses.

Masbate twins undergo tests

By Michael Lim Ubac

A DAY after arriving in Manila, the Garganta twins yesterday went through a series of tests, which could take weeks or even months, to establish if they could be physically separated by surgery.

Doctors at the Philippine General Hospital said the conjoined twins Angela and Angel Mae went through X-ray, 2D echo and abdominal ultrasound to detect congenital heart anomalies and ascertain their anatomy.

They are scheduled to undergo a CT-scan today.

"There is no official reading yet," said Gwen Pang, fund manager of the Philippine National Red Cross who is keeping track of the girls' condition.

But so far, the doctors had not detected any health problems on the twins who were joined at the waist (with one umbilical cord) when they were born on April 29 in Masbate City, according to Pang.

"The condition of the twins is OK," she reported, stressing that diagnostic and laboratory tests could last for two weeks, so the twins could stay in PGH for the entire duration of the tests.

"I was told that the operation will not happen soon, it's a long process and it's done step by step," said Pang.

Dr. Josefina Almonte, head of the PGH Pediatrics-Surgical ward, told the bequeen on Tuesday that any surgical procedure could not be conducted until after the twins were more than two months old.

Other PGH doctors said the ideal age for any surgical operation was 9 months to one year.

Almonte expressed elation that the twins had separate hearts and lungs, which could greatly increase their chances of being surgically separated.

Besides heart anomalies, the tests would ascertain whether the twins had separate gastro-intestinal system, she added.

SUPREME COURT DOCTRINES

DOCTRINES OF THE SUPREME COURT
The Supreme Court has issued several doctrines that have shaped the legal landscape of the Philippines. These doctrines are essential for understanding the Court's role in the government and its impact on the lives of Filipinos.

1. Doctrine of Separation of Powers
This doctrine states that the three branches of government—the executive, legislative, and judicial—are separate and distinct. Each branch has its own functions and powers, and they must not overlap.

2. Doctrine of Judicial Review
This doctrine gives the Supreme Court the power to review and declare laws or executive actions unconstitutional if they violate the Constitution.

3. Doctrine of Due Process
This doctrine guarantees that the government must follow fair procedures when it takes away a person's life, liberty, or property. It includes the right to a fair trial and the right to be heard.

4. Doctrine of Equal Protection
This doctrine guarantees that all citizens are treated equally under the law. The government cannot discriminate against any group of people based on race, religion, or other factors.

5. Doctrine of Non-Interference
This doctrine states that the judiciary should not interfere in the internal affairs of the executive or legislative branches, and vice versa.

6. Doctrine of Public Interest
This doctrine states that the government has a duty to protect the public interest. It includes the right to a clean environment, the right to health, and the right to education.

7. Doctrine of Sovereignty
This doctrine states that the Philippines is a sovereign state, meaning it has the right to govern itself without interference from other countries.

8. Doctrine of Self-Determination
This doctrine states that the people of the Philippines have the right to determine their own future and to choose their own government.

9. Doctrine of Nationalism
This doctrine states that the government should promote the interests of the Filipino people and the nation as a whole.

10. Doctrine of Democracy
This doctrine states that the government should be based on the will of the people. It includes the right to vote, the right to run for office, and the right to participate in the government.

8 of 26 RP beaches flunk test for coliform

By Elancho S. Rivera

THE ENVIRONMENTAL Management Bureau has tested 26 of the country's most popular beaches for fecal and total coliform content to ensure that the water is fit for swimming and diving.

About one-third, or most probably eight of these beaches, did not meet the government's water quality standards, EMB director Aileen Amador said. He, however, refused to name the beaches.

Amador said the local governments and resort owners were given six months to improve the water quality in their beaches by following the recommendations of the EMB.

Amador wrote to the local governments of the failing beaches late last year, saying that the results of the water sampling done by the EMB were "not encouraging" and that the local officials must prepare an action plan to address this.

Former Environment Secretary Elisa Gozun, who started the Beach Ecowatch program during her term, said the beaches would be exposed by September if the local governments failed to improve their status.

"We want to make tourism a viable industry; we're not just looking at short-term economic benefits," she said.

"Your selling point is the natural beauty of a given area and part of it is the cleanliness of your water, so we're using this precisely to pressure both the developer and the LGUs to do everything they can to maintain water quality," Gozun, chair of the Earth Day Network, said.

She said only Indonesia, the world's largest archipelago with 17,000 islands, had similar efforts to ensure the water quality of its beaches.

Amador refused to name the 26 beaches that were assessed, but Gozun's Beach Ecowatch program last year identified the world-famous Bo-racay in Aklan, El Nido in Palawan, Daloak in Zamboanga del Norte, Pagudpud in Ilocos Norte, Puerto Galera in Oriental Mindoro, and Puerto Arol in Cavite as prime bathing areas whose water quality must be tested.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources adheres to the international acceptable fecal coliform content in water for swimming at 200 colonies per 100 ml and total coliform content at 1,000 mfu (most probable number) per 100 ml.

Fecal coliform bacteria are found in the feces of humans and other warm-blooded animals. Total coliform contains bacteria from cold-blooded animals and other soil organisms.

Fecal coliform are not dangerous but they contain bacteria, viruses and parasites that cause diseases and illnesses.

"A person swimming in such waters has a greater chance of getting sick from swallowing disease-causing organisms, or from pathogens entering the body through cuts in the skin, nose, mouth, or the ears," according to the Indiana University-Bloomington water quality test forms.

Waters with high fecal coliform counts can cause typhoid fever, hepatitis, gastroenteritis, dysentery and ear infections.

Somali PM unharmed as bomb blast kills 15

MOGADISHU (AP) — A powerful bomb blast in the capital of Somalia on Monday killed 15 people and wounded more than 50, but the prime minister, Abdi Qayyid Mohamud, was unharmed.

The explosion occurred in a crowded market area near the prime minister's residence. The blast was attributed to a group of extremists who are opposed to the current government.

The prime minister, who was in the area at the time of the blast, was not injured. He is expected to return to his residence shortly.

The attack is the latest in a series of violent incidents in Mogadishu. The city has been the scene of intense fighting between the government and various armed groups.

The United Nations has called for a ceasefire and has expressed concern over the situation in the capital. It has also provided humanitarian aid to the victims of the blast.

More than 100 people have been killed in the Philippines since 1988. The Commission on Human Rights has identified the Philippines as "the most dangerous country for journalists" in the world. The Philippines is a country of great beauty and diversity, but it is also a country of great poverty and inequality. The people of the Philippines are a brave and resilient people, but they are also a people who are often overlooked and forgotten.

A man is lying on his stomach on a sandy beach, wearing blue swim trunks. He is holding a small, round object in his hands. To his right is a large, red, rectangular box with the word "FORTUNE" written on it in white, stylized letters. The box is open, and a yellow cloth is draped over its top. In the background, there is a body of water and a city skyline with several tall buildings. The sky is blue with some clouds. The overall scene suggests a relaxing day at the beach.

Tanday allots P2B for expansion

By Michael Lewis

Tanday has announced a major expansion plan, allocating P2B for the purpose. The company, which is a leading provider of financial services, has announced that it will be increasing its capital base to P2B. This will enable the company to expand its operations and provide a wider range of services to its customers. The expansion plan is expected to be completed by the end of the year.
